BROADWAY THEATER.

Sheddy's vaudeville returned to the Broadway theater this afternoon with another big comedy show. There will be no further nights out except for big road attractions. A big headliner has been booked in Mr. and Mrs. Colby, who have an amusing act in black art. This is a musical act and the vaudeville is in the act are produced in all kinds of mysterious ways and it is replete with good music and interesting novelties. The title of the act is "Kimo." Pat and May Toney have a great Irish sketch featuring Pat Toney, the greatest harp soloist in the world. May is a good girl dancer and is always a hit wherever she goes. The latest in motion pictures is always seen at the Broadway, and a complete change of pictures has met with popular approval.

BREED THEATER.

The Call, Fascinating Story of Circus Life.
Despite the intense cold of yesterday, there were exceptionally large audiences at both the evening and afternoon performances at the Breed theater. When the splendid bill of big grade motion pictures was presented for the first time this week.
The beautiful story of a picture of circus life as it really is, splendidly portrayed by the peerless Biograph cast, is easily the greatest of the evening, and the absorbing romance with its varying emotions is given a little touch of humor by the great views of the bucolic audience witnessing the side show. The star freaks of the circus, who have had their peculiar stunts, as well as many scenes in the dressing tent, where much of the action of the picture takes place. This is a picture that is most appealing in character and its many beautiful and thrilling scenes are perfectly carried out by the very interesting and consistent story.

One of the most beautiful dramatic and photogenic processes of the program is the magnificent film of the circus, which is a picture of the adaptation of the famous novel by Dumas and is a masterpiece of film production.

There are many other attractions, including in which is the splendid song, "Then You'll Remember Me," by Miss Walcott, who is delighting all of her hearers by her artistic work and pleasing personality.

McMillan Lecture.

Out from the desolation of the Arctic night, detectors that for centuries have, like a magnet, drawn men on to face the terrors of the frozen north, has come the intriguing story of the expedition with a story of success that has startled and thrilled the world.

Triumph over the elements, seemingly unsurmountable obstacles, discoveries of the long sought north, these men of America have led to the achievements of the twentieth century the most remarkable chapter in the history of modern times.

Next Friday evening, in Town hall, Danielson, Professor McMillan, Commander Robert E. Peary's first assistant on the wonderful trip to the top of the earth, will deliver his lecture, "With Peary in the Arctic," that has been everywhere received with intense interest.

Professor McMillan tells the story of the conquest of the pole in a way that never fails to attract the greatest audience. He will tell the story of the expedition with a story of success that has startled and thrilled the world.
